A genealogical profile of William White

Birth: William White was most likely born by about 1590.

Death: He died in Plymouth Colony on February 21, 1620/1.

Ship: Mayflower, 1620

Life in Holland: There was one man named William White in Leiden, and possibly two. William White, woolcomber, is mentioned in the Leiden records from 1612 to 1621. William White, tobacco merchant, is mentioned from 1623 to 1631. The records may refer to one man who changed professions or to two separate men. There is no evidence to connect the William White of Plymouth Colony with Leiden.

Life in New England: William White; his wife Susanna; their two sons and two servants, William Holbeck and Edward Thompson, arrived in Plymouth Colony in 1620. William White and the two servants died that winter. Susanna married Edward Winslow shortly thereafter.

Family: William White married Susanna _____ by about 1615 and had two sons. He died in 1620/1 and she married (2) Edward Winslow on May 12, 1621, in Plymouth Colony and had five children. Susanna died between 1654 and 1675.

Where do I go from here?

Researching your family’s history can be a fun, rewarding, and occasionally frustrating project. Start with what you know by collecting information on your immediate family. Then, trace back through parents, grandparents, and beyond. This is a great opportunity to speak to relatives, gather family stories, arrange and identify old family photographs, and document family possessions that have been passed down from earlier generations.

Once you have learned all you can from family members, you will begin to discover other sources. A wide variety of records can help you learn more about the lives of your ancestors. These include birth, marriage, and death records; immigration and naturalization records; land records; census records; probate records and wills; church and cemetery records; newspapers; passenger lists; military records; and much more.

When you use information from any source — an original record, a printed book, or a website — always be careful to document it. If you use a book, you should cite the author or compiler, the full title, publication information and pages used. Also be sure to record the author’s sources for the information. If the author’s sources aren’t provided, you will have to try to find the original source. Many genealogical works contain faulty information, and the Internet also contains many inaccuracies. In order for your work to be accepted — by lineage societies and other genealogists — it must be properly documented.
